Chesapeake Testing

When many people think of a laboratory, they think of high school chemistry class, mixing chemicals and using basic equipment like thermometers, beakers and Bunsen burners. What may not immediately come to mind are ballistic testing, outdoor blast, environmental conditioning and body armor testing. Unless, of course, the laboratory in question is Chesapeake Testing in Belcamp, Md., near Aberdeen Proving Ground.

Jerry Reynolds, VP Business Operations @ Chesapeake Testing says...

“I had seen Tony Palumbo at numerous civic and local association events for over a year – he is a staunch supporter of the local commercial community and the military as well. This was a primary reason for asking Tony to come in and discuss his company, their philosophy regarding customer service and his ideas on how we can identify and mitigate/manage risk. He quickly identified our industry specific risks and explained / educated us on the P&C industry. Since then Tony and his staff have provided excellent service and guidance to us. Tony has a truly professional organization and I wholeheartedly recommend him as a business “partner” for your insurance needs.
